

Calvin Coolidge's HOMESTEAD
holds many surprises
for you to discover.

Need to fix
a carriage
wheel?
This jack will make it no big deal.

Calvin made this quilt with help from his mother.
It's called "Tumbling Blocks,"
And makes a good cover.

Cal's grandfather Coolidge kept peacocks as pets
This surprised many folks and that's a sure bet!

This small yoke Calvin made when just a boy,
It helped carry water and sap buckets, it's not a toy.

Calvin's father was constable for Plymouth town.
Handcuffs were used to keep prisoners bound.

A frock can be seen to the right of the door. It protected clothes when doing some chores.

Laundry was usually Monday's chore.
Tuesday was ironing – no time to be bored!

Taken at a Sunday School picnic in pleasant weather
The only photo of Calvin and sister Abbie together.

Young Cal filled this woodbox the best he could,
Heating and cooking used lots of wood.

The parlor was where you would sit.
When company came to visit.

Calvin became President standing near this table.
Sworn in by his father who was told he was able.

What do you think Calvin Coolidge was thinking while he was wearing these shoes?

Where did he go? What did he do?
